

THE Long Island
Conservancy

Corporate Volunteer Day

Bring your team, restore Long Island.

A HANDS-ON PARTNERSHIP OPPORTUNITY

WHAT IT IS

Your team comes out to a real restoration site and gets to work — planting natives, clearing invasives, and helping bring Long Island's landscapes back to life. No experience needed. LIC staff and trained volunteers handle the site, tools, and every step.

WHAT TO EXPECT

- 2–3 hours, mid-week, at a site across Nassau, Suffolk, Queens, or Brooklyn.
- A welcome and site orientation from LIC staff
- Guided hands-on planting and/or invasive removal
- A post-event impact summary with photos — perfect for internal communications and social media
- Recognition of your company's contribution to LIC's ongoing restoration work

YOUR INVESTMENT

Participation is a contribution in itself. For companies that want to deepen their impact, donations support restoration work across the region. Reach out to learn about available dates, locations, and investment opportunities.

WHY IT MATTERS

Long Island Conservancy is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit with one mission: plant native, remove the invasive, and conserve our lands. Every planting day directly advances active restoration work — rebuilding corridors for migratory birds, supporting pollinators, and protecting the island we all call home.

Your team won't just feel good. Plants go in the ground. Acres get restored. The impact is visible and lasting. And there's no better way to build a team than working side by side toward something that genuinely matters.
